Rifle Stages for all Rifle Classes

These are the most typical setups for the Gong Shoot, but the exact setup can vary dependent on the choice of the shoot director that day

Stage 1: 75 yards, Usually a Buffalo Gong. Often required to be shot sitting with cross-sticks.

Stage 2: 125 yards, Buffalo Gong. Usually required to be shot from the sitting position with or without a stool, using cross sticks.

Stage 3: 100 yards, Buffalo Gong. Usually required to be shot from the sitting position with or without a stool, using cross sticks.

Stage 4: 50 to 75 yards dependent on the gong used, Buffalo Gong most often, or other critter. Shot offhand without artificial support, no cross-sticks, rests etc.

SHOOTING DETAILS

Targets All targets are metal buffalo gongs, or other critters, hanging from a steel frame. The gongs will be painted a color suitable for the conditions, as chosen by the shoot director.

Gongs may be repainted during a shoot as conditions dictate. A hit anywhere on the gong counts as a hit. A hit determined by the spotter/scorer to be only on the metal support frame will be counted as a miss. The spotter/scorer will have the final say on scoring hits and misses.

Scorecards Each shooter will be responsible for their scorecard. Any discrepancies should be brought to the attention of the spotter/scorer before you leave a stage. Shooters are responsible for turning in their completed scorecards to the shoot director.

Number of Shots At each stage you may take up to 2 sighting shots before declaring you are going for score. There will be 5 shots for score at each stage. Once you start scoring shots you can not go back to sighting shots at that stage. Muzzle loading shooters may, with the consent of all involved, shoot only 3 shots or all 5 shots for score at all stages. This will be decided before any shooting starts.

Time You are not on the clock. You may take the time you need to shoot safely but you need to be mindful of other shooters waiting.

Tied Scores Ties will be broken by a shoot-off, the details of which will be at the discretion of the shoot director in consultation with the shooters involved.

NOTE

At any stage a shooter may elect to shoot that stage from a more difficult position than listed. For example a shooter may elect to shoot the sitting stage offhand, or a military rifle shooter may elect to shoot the 125 yard target standing with cross-sticks. Choosing a more difficult position is for the personal challenge of that shooter and will not result in any extra credit or points in any way. Once a shooter starts a stage from a more difficult position they must complete the stage that way. They may not revert to the normal way part way through that particular stage.

Revolver Classes

Black Powder Cap & Ball Revolver Black powder or substitutes. Lead round ball only, caliber 36 or larger.

Cowboy Action Cartridge Revolver Single Action. Black or smokeless powder. Lead bullets only, .32 through .45 caliber.

Revolver Stages

Revolver targets are rectangular steel gongs, placed at 20, 30, 40 and 50 yards distance. A shooter will shoot 5 shots at each distance for a total of 20 shots. Each shot will be scored as a hit or miss. Hits anywhere on the gong count as a hit. Hits only on the support frame will count as a miss. The spotter/scorer will have the final say on scoring hits and misses. Each competitor is responsible for their score card. Any discrepancies should be brought to the attention of the spotter/scorer before you leave the firing line. Shooters are responsible for turning in their score cards to the shoot director.

Registration

Registration will be open at the door from 8am to 9 am the morning of the shoot. A shooter may register for as many different classes as time will allow. A shooter may only enter an individual class once. Note: There is a new registration which includes a new liability release for all shooters, volunteers and spectators, as required by the Blue Hill R&P Club.

Safety Meeting

A shooters safety briefing will held at 9am, after which shooting will start. Shooting will be suspended for a lunch break as well as from time to time as needed for target maintenance.

2019 Blue Hill R&P Buffalo Gong Championship

A Blue Hill Club Champion for each class will be determined by the aggregated score for the gong shoots held for the 2017 season. Of the four shoots scores, the lowest one score will be dropped and the total of the other three will determine the champion at the September championship shoot. Dropping one score will allow for someone missing a shoot or having a “bad day”. Also, by dropping a score the winners will not be determined until the September shoot-making it a true Club Championship.
